

For Community Calendar Listings
January 2015

Personally Speaking with John David Smith

President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation set in motion the abolition of slavery and authorized the mobilization of African Americans to serve in the Federal armies against the Confederates' insurrection. Join John David Smith, Charles H. Stone Distinguished Professor of American History at UNC Charlotte, in a conversation about Lincoln and the U.S. Colored Troops.

Who: UNC Charlotte's College of Liberal Arts & Sciences

What: Personally Speaking with John David Smith

When: Tuesday, February 10, 2015

Time: 6:30 p.m.

Where: UNC Charlotte Center City, 320 E. 9th Street, Charlotte 28202

Cost: Free

Who's invited: Open to Public

Age: 18+

RSVPs: Yes: via the on-line registration form at <http://clas-pages.uncc.edu/ps/register/>

Parking: Complimentary in lots directly across 9th Street and directly across Brevard Street from Center City.

Other details: A 7:30 pm reception and book signing will follow the conversation.